To Whom It May Concern:

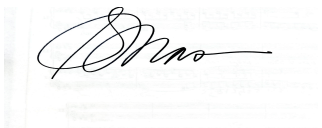

The Nascom Group is a technology design, consulting and project management firm, with a high concentration of clients in the education sector. We have been working with clients such as Dexter Community Schools for over 20 years. We began working on the Dexter Schools project during the bond planning stages, and our services continued on after the bond was passed.

I had the pleasure of working with Matt Maciag in his capacity as Director of Technology for Dexter Schools. During those years we worked together on overall project visioning, planning, budgeting and implementation. I found Matt to be one who was always looking for a better way to deliver instruction. He was interested in rooting out new technologies that were more productive and more cost effective. He was focused on standards, delivery and ease of management.

In my experience, one of the most difficult challenges for any tech director in K-12 Education is to implement change despite user resistance. Matt was enthusiastic about technology and openly shared his enthusiasm while showing sensitivity to end user needs.

I believe Matt will give any organization he works for good effort and will be a true catalyst for change. Feel free to call if you have any questions.

Respectfully,

Ms. Geri Nassar
